OEC clarifies application of the Electoral Act 2019

By: Joshua Lafoa'i

The Office of the Electoral Commission, (O.E.C.) in preparation for the 2021 General Elections remain the same based on the core principles of the Electoral Act 2019 approved by Parliament, clarified Electoral Commissioner Faimalomatumua Mathew Lemisio.

The OEC Chief clarification follows a confidential agreement sanctioned by the Supreme Court after a confidential agreement was reached with the petitioners Papalii Panoa Tavita and Tuala Ponifasio along with their Attorney Mauga Precious Chang.

"Due to the confidentially nature of our agreement which is not a ruling as misinterpreted by many, I can confirm that parts of Act will be redrafted to clarify the policy rationale behind the amendments under question," says Faimalomatumua. However he reaffirmed that the "application of the Act remains."

"It's safe to say that it's a more a question of interpreting certain parts of the act which are in question and we will redraft the amendments for further clarification," he added.

According to reports the two sections of the Act under questioned dealt with the eligibility of potential candidates to run for Parliament, and the authorities given to Electoral Commissioner Faimalomatumua Mathew Lemisio.

Hopes for Samoa Airways' return soars

By: Joshua Lafa'o'i

Government is far from giving up hope for Samoa Airways to return to the skies to resume its international services despite the uncertainty surrounding the COVID19 pandemic affecting international travel globally.

The reassurances is from Prime Minister Tuilaepa Dr. Sailele Malielegaoi during a briefing with the Savali news team Monday morning in his office.

"The airlines management is looking at all possible and best options available for our national carrier to secure a decent and affordable dry lease agreement to secure an aircraft," reassured the Prime Minister adding that Government is also mindful that the COVID19 is a deteriorating component in the on-going negotiations which has led to unilateral delays in sealing an agreement.

"The latest report from Samoa Airways targets October or early November for the leased aircraft to be delivered but that is tentative and can change," he said.

He said that delays in the acquisition of a lease aircraft is however is not a discouragement but added fueling to the national carrier determination to get back to work as soon as the COVID19 pandemic is over.

While in waiting, Samoa Airways plans for her return to full duties.

"The national carrier's long term vision and targets including securing two Boeing aircraft for the international routes to New Zealand, Australian and Hawaii," he said. "To have a fleet or more than 2 planes is an option that Samoa Airways is entertaining at this point in time due to the high financial and collateral risks if another pandemic strikes."

He noted that concentrating on the New Zealand, Australia and Hawaii routes is the best option recommended after a marketing research by Samoa Airways reaffirmed that the three destinations are the highest traditional profitable locations for the national carrier.

Regional and inter-island travel between Samoa, American Samoa and neighboring Pacific Islands countries is also contained in the Samoa Airways "blueprint and long term strategy," continued the Prime Minister.

For instance, lease purchase agreements for either ATR42 or DASG8-100 turbo-prop airplanes each with a capacity of up to 50 passengers and cargo is in the blueprint to service the regional routes between Samoa, Cooks Island, Tonga, American Samoa and other neighboring Pacific Islands.

A CRJ-Jet with passenger loading of 50 is also under national carrier's scanner.

The inter-island and regional flights will utilize the Ti'avea Airport currently under construction to complement Faleolo International Airport.

1,200 RSE workers re-employed despite COVID19 setbacks

By: Joshua Lafa'o'i

Close to 1,200 Samoan RSE workers in Australia and New Zealand have been re-employed despite the employment cutbacks across the horticulture and viticulture in these two countries due to the COVID19 pandemic.

The latest data from the Ministry of Commerce, Industry and Labor (MCIL) is reassurances to Prime Minister Tuilaepa Dr. Sailele Malielegaoi that the RSE program will continue despite the virus.

"The seasonal workers opportunities are critical to the growth of New Zealand and Australia's economy, so it's highly unlikely that it would stop," he said.

He noted that the economic impact and spinoffs of the RSE program for both countries is also on line if there is an absence of seasonal workers from the Pacific including Samoa.

Since the COVID 19 pandemic, over a 1,000 Samoa RSE workers have been repatriated during the last 5 months.

This does not include an estimated 4,000 Samoan citizens remaining in Australia and New Zealand for other employment opportunities.

From the 4,000, about 1,200 are RSE workers whose contracts have been renewed to work in the next coming season, confirms MCIL.

The rest are working in New Zealand and Australia for various contracts under the Agriculture/livestock and/or the hospitality employment scheme.

Tuila'epa says the numbers reaffirms the solid trust by Australia and New Zealand on the capacity and integrity of Samoa's working force.

Meanwhile, MCIL like the rest of Government is keeping a watchful surveillance on the developments of the COVID19 in the Tasmania and latest report confirms that none of the Samoans residents and RSE workers abroad have contracted the virus.

OEC clarifies application of the Electoral Act 2019

Meanwhile, the Commissioner says the OEC will still have to revisit the Act and its regulations.

"We realized that the wording was confusing and we sat down with our legal advisors and knew, win or lose we needed to address the sections in question because it needed to be satisfied in order for the law to be followed," he said.

The Commissioner says the realization is that the phrasing of this particular part of the Electoral Act 2019 was indeed misunderstood and may still be so unless it's rephrased for further clarification.

"The wording will be changed, but the application to this particular section of the Electoral Act will remain the same," he said.

"It's a good thing that we've had this case because it has shown us that not everyone can understand the technical language used to explain some parts of the Electoral Act," he said.

"It's also important that electoral candidates know where to go if they disagree with certain parts of the law and their interpretation," he added.

On that note, the Electoral Commissioner is encouraging electoral candidates to uplift the applications from the OEC prior to the official registration period which starts in October.

93% of the 323 sailors working with MSC have been re-employed during the COVID19 pandemic. The MSC have requested an additional 80 more sailors from Samoa.

WANTED; 80 more Samoan sailors for M.S.C.

By: Joshua Lafa'o'i

The Mediterranean Shipping Company, (M.S.C.) has reached out to Samoa Shipping Services (S.S.S.) with an urgent request to recruit 80 more Samoan sailors.

Presently, of the 323 Samoan sailors on the M.S.C. payroll, 93% or 300 are still employed which includes those who have had their employment contracts renewed recently with the balance awaiting contract renewals.

Informed last Friday, Prime Minister Tuilaepa Dr. Sailele Maliel-gaoi praised the Samoan sailors under the S.S.S. leadership saying that this is just rewards for the sailors' endurance and on the job performances. "More families will benefit thanks to our sailors working abroad. Your Government and country is proud and humbled with these achievements," complimented the Prime Minister

This week the Samoa Shipping Services Chief Executive Officer, Lautimu'ia Afoa Uelese Va'ai and staff are back on the interviewing table to select the successful applicants for the new vacancies.

"The negotiations and selections go through a rigorous process," says Shipping Services chief.

"Sailors on island is the priority group with the selection process covering background checks, qualifications and of course their health and physical conditions to ensure they are fit medical wise, physically and mentally.

"They will be afforded all the information including terms of their employments, so that were all on the same page. It is imperative that they understand," Lautimu'ia added.

As for transportation means, the SSS Chief says that one option is to fly the sailors to their destinations in groups depending of the availability of flights as a result of the strict border security measures in place.

He reassures the families and relatives of the final group to be selected that paramount to Government and SSS is the safety and well-being of the sailors from any high risks that may comprise their lives due to the COVID19.

"Every precaution will be taken to ensure the safety of our sailors before they leave the country," he reiterated.

NZHC Samoa continues support for community projects

PR - Every year, the New Zealand High Commission in Samoa supports a range of local projects that contribute to wider community well-being and development, through the High Commission Fund.

Recipients are selected according to priorities set by the High Commissioner and the in-country High Commission Fund administration team, and must be in line with the New Zealand Aid Programme's mission of 'sustainable development in developing countries, in order to reduce poverty and contribute to a more secure, equitable and prosperous world.'

In Financial Year 2019/2020, eight schools, eight community groups and organisations, and two women's committees from across Samoa were awarded support from the High Commission Fund.

"The quality of projects and applicants to the High Commission Fund continues to reflect the significant role of the community in delivering grass-roots initiatives, here, in Samoa," said New Zealand High Commissioner to Samoa, HE Dr Trevor Matheson.

"This is even more important now as Samoa, like the rest of the world, faces — and responds to — the challenges Covid-19 is presenting to our health services, economy, social systems, and broader way of life."

From providing funding to help Goshen Trust and the Samoa Victim Support Group care for the most vulnerable among us, to the purchase of sewing machines for Women's Committees and new resources, educational material and fences for a number of schools, the High Commission Fund enables New Zealand to contribute to and strengthen work taking place at the heart of community.

"We've seen such brilliant effort and commitment from all who have benefited from High Commission Fund support here, during the last 12 months," Dr Matheson said.

"We really want to keep this community momentum going and given the current State of Emergency in Samoa, and the global pandemic situation, we are inviting applications targeted specifically at health and economic empowerment initiatives when Round One of the 2020/2021 High Commission Fund opens on Monday 14 September."

Application forms, as well as information on High Commission Fund eligibility, prioritisation criteria and the application closing date, can be requested by emailing the High Commission Fund Administrator at nzhc-hcf@mfat.govt.nz

Recipients of 2019/2019 High Commission Fund support: Aana II College, Animal Protection Society, Avele College, Faleapuna School Committee, Gagaemauga Komiti o Atinae, Global Shapers, Goshen Trust, Leififi College, Letogo Primary School, Moataa Primary School, Pacific Island Hope Mission, Samoa International Game fishing Association, Samoa Victim Support Group, St Joseph Primary School, Talamua Media, Tanoa Bowling Club, Vaimoso Primary School and Vaisala Women's Committee.

Leauvaa Primary School-a testament

By: Asenati Taugasolo Semu

Mutual and beneficial partnerships based on respect and trust is behind the success of the new Leauvaa Primary School buildings funded by the Government of Japan and dedicated last Friday.

This is a fine example and a testament of the beneficial diplomatic relationships between Samoa and her development partners like Japan, says Prime Minister Tuilaepa Dr. Sailele Malielegaoi in his dedication address.

The Prime Minister noted that Japan's generosity to Samoa goes back to 1991 when diplomatic ties was formalized between the two countries. And since then, Japan has come to Samoa's aid supporting our people not only in the Education and Health Sectors but a ranger of diversified community projects.

"I want to convey a big thank you to the Government and people of Japan for funding this project," said Tuilaepa.

"I hope that we continue to maintain our good relations and to work collaboratively."

He also congratulated the School Committee, parents and the village of Leauvaa for their combining efforts in completing the project.

The project include eight new classrooms, a staffroom, library and bathrooms which will cater for 360 students already registered in the school roll.

Funding of $243,000 for the project was provided under Japan's Grant Assistance for Grass-Roots Human Security Projects (GGP).

Japan's Ambassador Terasawa Genichi in his remarks advice the school children to value the hard work by their parents and teachers for them to gain quality education.

"I am incredibly happy to assist your efforts for better educational environment through this project for Leauvaa Primary School. However, there is something more important than school facilities," said the Ambassador.

"I believe it is quality education. The quality education is provided by quality teachers. The Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture is always making great efforts for the capacity development of teachers through training programs.

"Japan will continue assisting the projects for capacity development of teachers conducted by the Ministry, as well as our assistance to improve school facilities."

Leauvaa school committee chairperson, Tuala Puletini M. Tuala in his report said this is the fourth site for the school in its history. The school was transferred from Sālago to Samalaeulu in 1968; from Samaleulu to Sālago again in 1998; and now it is located at Sātapatū.

"Our project journey was not easy. There have been a lot of hurdles, and there were also interpersonal challenges. But we are here today nevertheless. And we wish to thank all who have contributed in one way or another.

"Lau Afioga i le Palemia o Samoa, lau Susuga Tuilaepa Sailele Malielegaoi, your farsightedness has proven beyond a doubt in our country's development. One does not need to look very far to see proof of your Government's tireless efforts for a better Samoa.

"Leauvaa's celebration of this achievement today is a tangible proclamation of your vision.

"As you continue your service as our leader, we remind you of the words of Rosalynn Carter, "A leader takes people where they want to go. A great leader takes people where they don't necessarily want to go, but ought to be."

Tuala also thanked the Government of Japan for their assistance.

"From a humble community like us, and adding to the words of our Prime Minister today, please convey our gratitude to your people. You have done Leauvaa's heart well."

Tuala also thanked the families of Leauvaa who had donated their lands to build the school.

TI'AVEA FOR REGIONAL & INTER-ISLAND DUTIES

Dismissing the Samoa Observer reports that the Ti'avea Airport is unsuitable for international duties and does not have the capacity to service a Boeing 737-800 aircraft and other larger aircrafts, Minister of Works, Infrastructure and Transport Papali'itele Unasa Niko Lee Hand told Savali that the Airport was never designed nor planned from the start to for international duties.

Instead the original plan is to cater for inter-island and regional services by the national carrier Samoa Airways between the two Samoas and neighboring Pacific Islands like Cook Islands and Tonga.

To the extend, Papali'itele explained that the runway will be extended to 1,400 meters to cater for aircrafts planned by Samoa Airways for inter-island and regional travel.

"The airport will also be used during emergencies and natural disasters to fly in supplies and other urgently needed resources," he elaborated and noted that the airport was never designed or intended to service a Boeing 737 aircraft as alluded by the newspaper accounts.

"Experts have verified that the Ti'avea's airstrip is longer and safer than Fagalii Airport and perfect to meet Samoa Airways planned flights for the region and with Faleolo Airport included in the plan to facilitate the flights," explained the Works Minister.

He said that his clarification will also "lay to the rest the speculations cooked up to ridicule the Government's initiative to build the airport at Tiavea."

Papali'itele lead a Cabinet delegation that included the Minister of Revenue Tialavea Tioni Sio Hunt and Finance Minister Sili Epa Tuioti that visited the airstrip last week as part of their fact finding mission to prepare a submission to Cabinet to support the 600 meter extension to the runway.

5. There are a number of Point of Sale ("POS") and E-SDC products that have been accredited and published on the Ministry's website (www.revenue.gov.ws). Businesses with no invoicing system are strongly advised to consult the published material to select the best option that suits the nature of your business activities.
6. For those who have an invoicing system which is not yet accredited, please contact your vendor to inform them of the requirement to have their product(s) accredited. The first step for accreditation is visiting the Ministry's website (<https://www.revenue.gov.ws/sub-menu/131-accreditation>) to access the manuals and sandbox for testing.
7. Effective from date of this notice, the Commissioner will require business owners (if sole trader), the authorized partner (if partnership) and General Manager/Managing Director/Financial Controller (if company), to be the "authorized" contact person for TIMS purposes and will liaise with that authorized person only. We will no longer accept tax agents, accountants, consultants, or resellers of various POS systems, to liaise with the Ministry on specific issues relating to TIMS compliance. This will make it easier for the Ministry to explain direct our requirements to the taxpayer who is also the authorized person as to avoid miscommunication and additional costs to the taxpayer.
8. To our esteemed Businesses that have already installed TIMS and issued fiscal invoices, MCR appreciates and applaud your courage and resilience to comply despite the challenges of many factors beyond your controls. Please continue with your commended voluntarily compliance path and MCR will continue to provide the priority support and assistance that is available at any time.
